What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Norway Folks

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headache, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Norway resident. Who could ask for a better example?

E. C. Libby, tax collector, Sanborn St., says: "I had a great deal of backache which annoyed me to do anything. My head ached and specks floated before my eyes, blurring my sight. I used different remedies but it was left to Doan's Pills to give me lasting results."

Four years later, Mr. Libby said: "I haven't had occasion to use Doan's Pills since they cured me."

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white space this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill all the white squares up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill all the white squares to the next black square, except proper names. Abbreviations, signs, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

BATES—WEST PARIS

Mrs. Jennie D. Everett
The funeral of Mrs. Jennie D. Everett, wife of Leroy Everett, was held at their home at West Paris, Monday afternoon, Feb. 23. Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes attended the services and interment was in the West Paris cemetery.

Mrs. Everett was the fifth daughter of the late John and Dolly Gile Chase and was born at North Paris, May 22, 1851. She was twice married. Her first husband was Henry C. Hammond, who died three months after marriage. Her second husband survives, also five sisters, Mrs. Phebe Edgewood of South Paris, Mrs. Charlotte Ellis of Turner, Mrs. Mary Bradbury of West Paris, Mrs. Laura Chase and Mrs. Anna Kimball of South Paris and one brother, John Chase of Madison.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett had three children, Henry C., who died at the age of three years; Lucy, wife of Lewis B. Bates, who has lived at home and cared for her parents, and Roy, who died in infancy.

Mrs. Everett has been a great sufferer under long operations, three in the past two years. She was at the hospital when she died, was stricken with paralysis after the last operation. Mr. Everett remained with her while there, until her death. They have lived in their present home for thirty-two years and held in high esteem by their neighbors and friends.

A teacher training class of twelve members has been formed in the Federated Sunday School and the book they are going to study is entitled "Talks With the Training Class" by Margaret Slatery.

Use Hard Water in Mixing Spray

Government Bulletin Tells of Methods for Preparing Solutions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
More than half of the citrus groves are located in arid or semi-arid districts. A large proportion of the finer grades of fruit are grown in groves that are dependent wholly or in part upon deep well water for spraying purposes. The water from these wells is known as hard water, containing minerals in such proportions that the ordinary or unstabilized oil emulsions will not mix with it unless the water has been previously treated.

Mix With Well Water.
It has been found that oil emulsions stabilized with any one of a number of different colloidal substances will mix with practically all deep-well waters even when untreated. These stabilized emulsions will also mix with lime-sulphur solutions, making a highly effective combination spray for white flies, scale insects, and rust mites. When a combination of this kind is properly made by a competent spray manager it is a reasonably safe spray for either citrus foliage, branches or fruit. The stabilized oil emulsions have met with much favor among many of the largest citrus growers, who no longer find any difficulty in using the untreated water from deep wells.

Methods for Treating Water.
A new United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 1217, "Mixing Emulsified Mineral Lubricating Oils with Deep-Well Waters and Lime-Sulphur Solutions," by W. W. Yothers, entomologist, and J. R. Winston, pathologist, discusses the best methods for treating deep-well water, but also recommends using stabilized oil emulsions with untreated water.
Directions and formulae are given for stabilizing oil emulsions by applying various colloidal substances, such as casein, milk, skimmed milk powder, gelatin, cornmeal, wheat flour, corn starch, and laundry starch, as well as glue. Those interested may obtain the bulletin, as long as the supply lasts, by applying to the Division of Publications, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Crop Production Behind Increase in Population

Crop production in the United States is not keeping pace with the annual increase in population, according to figures just released by the United States Department of Agriculture.
Total crop production has increased 13 per cent during the past twelve years, but production per capita has decreased about 5 per cent.

The mass of crop production in 1924 as measured by an index number is 113 per cent of the average for the five-year period 1910-14, and in 1923 the figure was 110 per cent. The index of crop production per capita in 1924 is 95 per cent of the average for the five-year period, and in 1923 the index figure was 94 per cent.
There was a decrease of about one-fifth of 1 per cent in acreage of crops from 1923 to 1924 but production in this period increased 1 per cent. The trend of crop production per capita has been lagging since about 1915, with the exception of 1920, the department says.

Kansas Potato Growers Are Treating More Seed

In the Kaw valley of Kansas, seed potato treatment for control of tuber-borne diseases has been found to bring increased yield.

When agricultural extension workers began demonstrating approved methods of treating the seed in the potato-growing communities, very few farmers in this section used this preventive measure. Method demonstrations were followed by the growing of test plots in which treated and untreated seed was planted by farmers under the direction of extension workers. These test plots gave such farmers and their neighbors an opportunity to compare the results from the use of treated and untreated seed. The number of Kaw valley acres on which treated seed potatoes were planted has increased each year, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, from practically none in 1918 to more than 6,000 acres in 1924.

Crop Production in 1924

Estimates made by the United States Department of Agriculture show that the 19 truck crops produced in this country this past year for table use and manufacturing had a gross value to the growers of $818,000,000. This is $12,000,000 less than in 1923. Tomatoes were first in gross value, showing a total of $55,000,000. Also the largest acreage was devoted to this crop. Irish potatoes, valued at $44,000,000; strawberries, $35,000,000; and cantaloupes, $20,000,000.

Useful Litter Carrier

It is best to provide a good manure and litter carrier when one is making preparations to take care of the manure. It is one of the greatest labor-savers that can be found about the modern barn. The manure can be forked into the carrier easier than it can be thrown from the windows, and a few moments' toil will roll it out to the pit and dump the contents by the release of a mechanical lever.

Feed Molasses to Hogs

It seldom pays to feed molasses to hogs when it costs more per pound than corn. In fact some experiments at the Mississippi experiment station show that it requires from 1.8 to 1.9 pounds of molasses to equal 1 pound of corn when fed to pigs. Other experiments have shown a higher value but it is certain that molasses will not equal corn pound for pound. Therefore, with corn at its present price, it would not pay to substitute molasses at 25 cents per gallon.

PARIS HILL

Newton Cummings has kindly consented to present a Sunday evening service via radio, at the Church at 7:15 next Sunday.
Among the week end visitors to Paris Hill were Mrs. Marion Hammond, Dearing High, Portland; Harlan Shaw, Gray Business College; Robert Shaw, Portland; Edward Carlson, Bates College; Christine Nelson and Mary Thomas, Mechanic Falls; Miss Georgia Maxim, So. Paris, and Mary Daniels, New York. Mrs. Sadie Rowe visited Mrs. Kate Hammond two days, last week; part of one day was spent at a business meeting at Julia Shaw's.

Supper, Friday night, was a success. There were five tables set. The drama was extra fine.
Mrs. Walter Fogg has returned from Massachusetts, bringing her nephew with her for a short visit.

Georgia Maxim spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hammond. Mr. and Mrs. Harlan M. Andrews of South Woodstock spent the day, Friday, with Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hammond. Mrs. Andrews is just getting out, she has been in all winter with whooping cough, and her two sons, Stanley and Leonard, have also had it.

A. W. Andrews has employment at South Paris.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising.)

Application of Above Method of Tuning the Grid Provides Tonal Quality That Equals the Crystal, Its Inventor Claims.

A tuned, open grid circuit, arranged so that high frequency current must pass into the grid and thus eliminate objectionable noises occasioned when low frequency or rectified current passes into the grid, is claimed by Charles Kosnick, of New York City, in said to be devised from the arrangement include a set that is non-radiating, sensitive, selective and remarkably free from distortion. An added advantage is the low cost of construction.

Description of Circuit.
Mr. Kosnick's patent description of his circuit follows:
Referring specifically to the drawing, the vacuum tube which is shown at V is of the three electrode type, the plate being indicated at P, the filament at F and the grid at G.

The plate P is connected in circuit with the usual battery and connected P1, while the fixed condenser C2 is connected across the circuit from one side of the phones P1 to the minus of the B battery.

The filament F is connected in circuit with an A battery and included in this circuit is a rheostat R, by means of which current to the filament may be controlled. The filament and plate thus receive low frequency current.

The grid G is connected in an open circuit with tuning elements, herein shown as a variable capacitor C1, with a variable condenser C connected across the plate, the grid of the tube V, one side of the variometer being connected to the aerial A1. The opposite side of the grid G and included in this connection is a fixed condenser C1 and a grid leak L. The plate circuit is connected to the pole pieces can then be slightly ground down so that the distance is practically identical in every receiver.

The ends of the pole pieces are then attached directly to the coils and the whole thing inserted in the receiver case, much like the assembly of a watch.

The earpiece screws into the case and the magnet assembly and diaphragm are securely held in place. The troublesome nuts and connections for the headphones on the back of the case are eliminated and the chances for leakage of energy across the plug lugs, where the connections are brought through from the inside of the case, are done away with.

Try Switching Tubes to Increase Efficiency
You may be able to get an increase in efficiency equal to as much as 50 to 75 per cent by merely switching the tubes around in the different sockets in your set.

First tune in a signal, and then take two of the tubes from the sockets and reverse them, putting them each in the other's socket.

Keep on doing this in various combinations until you hit on the particular combination that gives you the best results.

Long Aerial Necessary for Your Crystal Set
A crystal detector set should have a long aerial, for the crystal detector relies exclusively on the strength of the incoming signal for its operation, as it has no local battery to assist it. The funds heard in the telephone are the strength of the actual signals coming through after rectification by the crystal. The longer the aerial is with certain limits, the better the results should be on the crystal detector.

Useful to Pie Eaters
The piece of pie is recognized as the appropriate finish of an American luncheon, but for the fellow who carries his noonday meal to his job, the pie feature has been impossible to a great extent because of the inconvenience of transportation. Packed up in the usual lunch receptacle, the pie is always liable to be crushed and its juicy contents squirted out all over the other viands; but there has recently been made its appearance a carrier for a pie-shaped receptacle exactly like a piece of pie. It is made of aluminum so that there is almost no weight to it. The cut of pie is placed in it and the lid pushed down and there you are safe and sound.

New Variety
Dickey was unlike most children and loved his morning bath. One morning his nurse told him to hurry and jump into the tub. Dickey was in all smiles until he saw the water in which he was to bathe. There had been a fire in the neighborhood and the water was a rusty brown. Dickey looked at his nurse, and pleadingly said: "You're not going to make me take my 'bath' in soup, are you?"

Dickey's "bath" was postponed until afternoon—Indianapolis News.

Showing the Various Parts of the Receiver.

phragm then rested on the edge of the receiver case, and the distance of the diaphragm from the pole-piece tips depended on the trueness of the receiver shell. With the best of machinery and manufacturing methods the receiver shell cannot be made accurate enough to insure that the distance of the air gap will be uniform.

Another disadvantage of this method of construction was that the case had to be made extra strong to hold the weight of the magnets and coils. The inner surface of the case had to be absolutely true and each side of the magnet drawn down evenly to the inside of the case with the mounting screws. This added considerably to the weight of the receiver.

An improvement has been designed by Maj. Herbert H. Frost, United States signal corps reserve, in the method of mounting the magnets and the pole pieces which eliminates the uncertainty of the diaphragm adjustment and permits the use of a much lighter receiver shell.

The magnets and the pole pieces are mounted on a strong aluminum stamp-horn and has a flange for supporting and seating the diaphragm. In this manner the distance between the diaphragm and the tip of the pole pieces is always the same, within a very slight variation either way. The tips

Writer Sees Virtue

in Incompatibility

"John and I get on splendidly," said Joan. "We never agree, you see, and by downright arguments about totally different things we find an outlet for all the petty grievances and impatience of every-day life. And so, because we lack what is commonly described as 'having lots in common,' we always have something to talk about, something to discuss from differing angles without necessarily touching upon purely personal affairs. It is so good for both of us; we are thoroughly happy."

Thus a married friend of mine, a wife of four years' standing, over whose marriage to a man some years her senior and of completely different habits and tastes wise people had shaken despondent heads, Marjory Swift comments, in the Washington Post.

Is total compatibility so utterly necessary for happily married life as is commonly thought? Rather it is not possible that by their very difference each partner can supply what the other lacks, the combination making a perfect companionship?

My friend's experience leads me to decide that the vast majority, as is recognized by the vast majority, is the most important ingredient for the success of that subtle compound marriage. With it that stimulation which only intelligent disagreement with, and criticism of, one's fundamental views and opinions can supply, will ever be present; for upholding one's own ideals, will ever spur one on a vigorous defense of those ideals.

Thus one would never grow old. Always stimulated, always on the defensive, one's brain would laugh at the passage of the years, would find it impossible, because of its activity, to collect clogging rust.

And think of the joy of living with someone who, day in, day out, will not, cannot, say, "Yes, dear, I quite agree; you are perfectly right." How terribly corroding it must be to experience daily acquiescence, however futile one's ideas!

Killing for Food, and Fun
The contrast between the native Indians of the jungle, who kill for food, and the white man, who kills for fun, was brought out strongly by T. Gilbert Pearson, who returned to New York recently from a scientific exploration trip to the isthmus, the Kansas City Star states.

Mr. Pearson told of the ornithological investigations recently carried on in the jungles of Panama, not far from the home territory of the White Indians, at the instance of President Porras of the Panama government, who wished to know what conservation measures were necessary to protect the birds and animals of the isthmus.

The conservation was reached by the natives, though cruel, were not destructive; they fitted into the natural life of the jungle without upsetting anything. But the coming of the Americans changed the situation. Americans from the Canal Zone would go out on hunting trips and simply kill anything they saw. Vast numbers of birds and animals also began to find their way into the markets for American purchasers. To stop this, conservation laws have been passed by the Panamanian parliament.

Grease for Baldness
"I had a bit of good fortune recently," said a Detroit photographer. "I was going past a market when I noticed that quite a crowd had gathered around the carcass of a huge black bear suspended from a hook at the door. I found the proprietor and, after a short session of dickering, he cut a huge chunk of fat from the interior of the former noble animal. I took this home and my wife tried it out—with the result that I now have a large pan of bear's grease on hand. So far, my story is not unusual. But, bear's grease is said to be a most effective hair-grower, and I am now combating the ravages of time very effectively. I apply the grease every night on my bald spot, and I think I can already see where results are forthcoming."

Voice From a Fan

The latest gramophone has no horn, no tone-arm, and no sound-box. In place of these there is a platted upright diaphragm 14 inches in diameter. At the bottom of this fan is a needle-holder, very like the ordinary one, into which the needle is fitted and set going on the record in the usual way.

This simple apparatus is said to reproduce a voice so well that if the gramophone is placed behind a screen it is impossible to say whether a human being is there or a machine.

The inventor is a Frenchman, M. Lumiere, who was making investigations into acoustics when he was surprised to hear a strange noise coming from the center of a fan of platted paper with which he was experimenting.

POULTRY FACTS

PRODUCE MORE EGGS IN WINTER SEASON

"The Badger state's winter egg production can be increased very noticeably per hen by carrying out certain easily followed plans," says O. M. Johnson, superintendent of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture poultry flocks.

"We have discovered," avers Johnson, "that pullets must be separated from the old hens to get the best possible egg production. If this policy is not carried out, the older hens will keep the pullets from their feed and boss them around so that they do not have a chance to get full development."

By letting the pullets run with the older fowls, there is also a great danger of spreading diseases. This, too, is fatal to egg production. An underdeveloped pullet or one that is backward in her development should be sold, continues the poultryman. These pullets, as well as cockerels that are not to be kept for spring's breeding, do not as a rule pay their board.

"Skim milk is one of the greatest aids in egg production and it should be used to the limit," says Johnson. "and each pullet should never be without plenty of milk, either sour or sweet." Washing the dish thoroughly each time before feeding is precaution so as to guard from diseases. When hens have all the milk they can drink, very little water is needed. In fact it is best, advises the poultryman, that pullets do not have water if they have all the skim milk they can drink. The milk will furnish them with water and at the same time the proteins and minerals the pullets need.

Whole cabbages hung up in the scratching pens will furnish green feed, but other greenstuffs also serve their purpose. Many poultrymen make the mistake of throwing large amounts of green stuffs on the floor where it gets moldy and dirty.

For the mash, which the pullets should have access to at all times, equal parts of bran middlings, yellow cornmeal, oats and beef scraps or tankage has given the best results. If the chickens have all the milk they can drink, the meat scraps and tankage can be cut to one-half part.

"A dry, well ventilated hen house free from mites and lice is important. The litter in the scratch pens should not be too deep at first as the pullets do not know how to scratch deep, or else will not. Yellow cracked corn is as good a scratch feed as any needed, but one-third of any whole wholesome grain can also be added."

Ration Recommended for Making of Winter Eggs

The following ration for winter egg production recommended by the Maine College of Agriculture, satisfies the needs of the hens and is economical and practical. During the past year it has been fed on a number of farms with good results: Scratch grain—ten pounds of shelled corn and five pounds of dry threshing chaff. Mash—three pounds of wheat bran, three pounds of wheat shorts and one and one-half pounds commercial meat scrap.

Where milk is plentiful three gallons of skim milk buttermilk furnished each 100 hens daily will take the place of meat scrap. Either milk or some form of lean meat must be supplied in every ration for successful winter egg production. Commercial meat scrap can be obtained from most feed dealers in 100-pound sacks. On 100 hens will supply protein needed by 100 hens for more than two months.

Barley or feed wheat may be used instead of oats. Cornmeal or ground oats may be substituted for shorts in the mash. Alfalfa meal or clover leaves may take the place of the bran.

A good grade of tankage may be used instead of the meat scrap. In feeding this ration all grain should be fed in deep straw to compel the birds to exercise. The mash should be fed in self-feeding hoppers or troughs and supply kept before the birds. In addition to this ration, hens should have an abundance of water, a supply of green food and free access to soft grit and crushed oyster shells or soft limestone grit. With early hatched pullets, housed comfortably, and fed this ration, winter eggs are assured.

Plan of Line Breeding

Line breeding can be done by using the same ancestry or blood lines with careful selection that avoids the bad effects of inbreeding. The shade of difference between line breeding and inbreeding is sometimes very faint.

Breeding the pullets of a mating back to the sire, and one of the cockerels back to the hen, is a strict line breeding, which is often practiced to establish certain qualities in a strain.

One Nest for Six Fowls

One nest should be provided for each five or six fowls, and even more if trap nests are used. Twelve by twelve inches is large enough and one-fourth-inch mesh hardware cloth is excellent for the bottom. Wall nests are to be preferred to those located under the dropping platform, but the wall nests require a top place at an angle of at least 45 degrees, to prevent the chickens roosting on them. The runways along the front of the nests can also be made to fold up.

Homebuilding Progress

Progress made in homebuilding since the days of the pioneers to the beginning of the twentieth century can be termed little more than normal. It merely followed the general trend of educational and industrial development, but occasionally took erratic turns with resultant structures that were chiefly unimpressive in design and using extraneous materials.

Much of that has been done away with by the builders of the last few decades.

"OLD-SALT" TALES

By CAPTAIN IRA PERKINS

(Copyright.)

Minute Tells a Story

"Now that the ten of you have made up your minds to call your club the 'Ten Skippers' club," I assume you are ready to hear a tale or two," said Captain Ira, and there was a humorous twinkle in his eye.

"Yes," answered several skippers. "And if you please, Captain Ira, I'd like to hear more about that pony named Minute," added Bobby Treat.

"As I told you some time back," began the captain, "I didn't really go along all the way with Minute. Some of the things I know about him were told to me by his friends. Other things I just had to surmise for myself."

"Suppose I tell you this story as Minute himself might tell it," he could talk. We'll see how close I can come to talking like you may think a horse should and to having horse-feelings, and horse-sense. Try to imagine these things with me. It was like this—

"And Minute thinks to himself—'Well, there I was tied tight and fast to this new manila picket line. There wasn't even a bit of grass to nibble, and I was so hungry that I could have devoured a bale of hay.'

"Pretty soon, some soldiers came, and they led us all away to a big courtyard where we were sorted out. Then we were assigned to certain men. These men looked us over with a great deal of interest. They patted us on the nose, and examined our feet, and some of them thumped us in the ribs till it hurt like everything."

"Finally, we were all led back to the picket line and tied fast again. 'If you have ever been real good and hungry, you know just how grouchy it makes a fellow feel. I was grouchy, sure enough. Besides that, some big horses near me started to shove and to make remarks about my size. I stood all I could of it, then I began to kick. Now, I'm a pretty good kicker, even though I do it by myself, and it was no time at all until I had all those big horses standing away at a respectable distance."

"About that time, the soldiers came along to feed us. One of them saw me standing there all by myself, and he stepped close and looked me over in that calculating way men have when they are thinking of buying one of us horses. Only, of course, he couldn't buy me. He could only pick me out, to ride and to take care of. Also, if you don't mind my saying it, so that I could sometimes take care of him. Then I heard him call to some one further down the line: 'Here is the horse I want.' Next, he went away and then I never tasted anything so delicious."

"That soldier and I soon grew to be firm friends. He took good care of me. One day my soldier and I were to go on guard at one end of a big artillery practice range. The idea was that we were to keep everyone from going down a road which led to the end of the range, where the shells exploded. I don't know how it came about, but in some way a farmer and his wife, with a cart drawn by two black oxen, had gone past the soldier who was on guard before we came."

He also explained how we could make a short cut through the hills and reach the farmer before the firing started. 'Away we went at a gallop. Down a lane, across a brook, through a thicket, into a cornfield; better-sketcher we scurried along for a mile or two. Then, right in front of us, a great long cliff loomed up. It was high as a three-story house, steeper than the steepest roof and studded with jagged boulders as big and broad as a door."

"My soldier was very angry. I'm afraid he said something wasn't very nice. Then he jumped off my back and decided to hasten on afoot, as it looked all he could do to climb the cliff himself."

"Up the cliff he started. Never once did he look back at me. When I saw that, I decided to do some climbing myself. It was a hard pull. Once I thought I couldn't make it. But I scrambled on and, just as my soldier went over the top of the cliff I sorted to get his attention and to have him wait for me."

"Did he wait? Well, you can just believe he did. He actually hugged me in joy when I reached his side. Then he swung into the saddle and away I galloped to the farmer and his wife."

"We caught the farmer and his wife and maybe saved their lives. They were grateful to us, at any rate."

"Well, that is all to that tale, and I'm going for a trot. Come around some other time and I'll have more war tales to tell you."

With that, Minute starts eating, and all we can hear is his strong teeth crunching the grains of corn.

BRIDGTON

Mellen Plummer

Mellen Plummer, prominent in banking circles, died at his home here, Saturday afternoon, at the age of 73. He had been in failing health for several years, and had retired from the position of treasurer of Bridgton Savings Bank with which he had been connected for the past 38 years.

Mr. Plummer was born in Waterford, Nov. 4, 1851, and came to Bridgton in 1873, where he was employed in the P. P. Burnham store for 15 years. He became connected with the Bridgton Savings Bank, and was treasurer of that bank for many years. He was trustee of Cumberland Lodge, I. O. O. F., for 25 years; a member of Oriental Lodge, F. & A. M., other branches of Masons. He served as town treasurer and town clerk of Bridgton and was trustee of the Ministerial Fund of the Congregational Church for many years.

Besides his wife, Mr. Plummer leaves a son, Carl T. Plummer, who succeeded him as treasurer of the Bridgton Savings Bank.

Funeral services were held Monday.

SOUTH ALBANY

Spring is surely on the way. All signs are favorable. Ivan Kimball saw a raccoon out sunning himself on a log one day recently. He has several trees tapped which are running well and already has made some very nice syrup. This is the made some of the season so far reported.

Merton Kimball and Clyde Millett of South Waterford were at Merritt Savin's recently. They bought a real calf of Ernest Browne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Lebroke were invited to spend the day with his daughter, Mrs. Jesse Littlefield, and family at No. 71st birthday.

Ernest Browne, Merritt Savin, Elmer Huxley and Herman Holt have all been hauling sawdust to cover their ice.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Savin visited at Ezra Lebroke's, Tuesday, the 17th.

Walter Cawwell is again hauling pulpwood to Holt's Brook. He has been unable to haul since the big rain as the roads are in such a bad condition.

Letters from Della Holt, at Ormand Beach, Florida, all of beautiful weather there. She is enjoying the winter very much and is glad to escape the cold and heavy storms which we have had here the past winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Browne and son, Donald, recently visited her father, John Lord, at North Waterford. They found him very lame and not able to move around a great deal.

Albert Adams of West Stoneham has bought some hay of Ernest Browne and has hauled part of it to Stoneham.

FRYEBURG

The Busy Bee Club

It being a nice warm day, with the sun shining brightly, all the Busy Bees that were able to attend were welcomed at the home of Mrs. Blanche Kendall, Wednesday, February 18th.

There has been another new member join the order. After her name was read at this meeting, she was brought forward and given the degrees without protesting and is now enrolled as a full fledged member of the Busy Bee Club.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Rinn, Wednesday, March 4th. There will be voting and work done on two other candidates who wish to join this order. All the officers and members will please be present at this meeting.

At the date this is written, the snow in this vicinity is melting fast and the roads are being driven, bare ground is being seen in several places.

The roads are now passable across the intervals after a period of several days of high water and old Saco overflowing its banks.

The last reports heard from Charles Mason were that he was on the gaining list. Wood is being hauled to the different homes in preparation of next winter's fuel. It is keeping J. Kerr busy with his Sparkling and sawing machine.

The Fausse Grange met Friday night, the 20th and worked the first and second degrees. A nice entertainment was finished. Dancing followed this until one o'clock. All the young members seemed to enjoy themselves. There were several visiting members.

Four more weeks of school, then Hurrah! when vacation day comes. Several people in this vicinity are having bad colds.

Twelve Good Reasons For Owning One's Home

Here are a round dozen reasons why the "Own Your Home" movement is worth while for every man to join eventually. "Why not now?" to use a well-known advertising slogan. The reasons follow:

A home is the best investment you can make, and it will yield the biggest returns on your money.

It creates a feeling of assurance and independence.

It is a big step toward future happiness and success.

You need not wait until you have the full amount in order to begin purchasing your home.

By making monthly payments you pay for your home with the same amount of money, sometimes less than you are now paying for rent.

Each year you equity in the property becomes greater.

When you are living in your home you are not living in an atmosphere of uncertainty.

You will be secure in the thought, "I will not be forced to move from the neighborhood in which I have lived for many years."

You can continue to worship in the same church, your children can continue at the same school and you can continue the association and friendship of your neighbors.

You do not have to importune the landlord, who is deaf to your urgent plea to fix the roof, the furnace or the porch.

When you own your home you add prestige to your standing in the community and among your business associates.

To own a home is a duty you owe your wife and children—almost as important as life insurance.

"Consider this dozen daily," paraphrased another "ad" man.

Would Take Billboards From Public Highways

The National Association of Real Estate Boards has issued a statement expressing approval of a law just becoming effective in Iowa, which prohibits billboards on public highways.

The new Iowa law was enacted primarily as a measure of public safety. A confusion of advertising signs along the way obscures the official signs placed to warn of turns, sharp curves, railroad crossings and the like. But it is no less valuable as a measure for conserving scenic spots for the enjoyment of the general public, the association points out in its statement.

The view from the highway does not belong to the individual who owns the property along the right of way. It is a community possession. Real estate is interested in the whole present movement to eliminate billboards from highways where they are a blot on scenery, a priceless public possession.

Modern Principles
A grocer in a western town has an arrangement with the pastors of the various churches whereby he "swaps" with them the names of new families moving into town.

The merchant and the ministers jot the names down in little notebooks and every two weeks.

This is one of the plans used to get the names of newcomers and keep them in touch with real estate men. They also watch the papers and keep soon as they learn of a new family in town they call personally.

Finding the right place to attend church or trade is always a job for a woman who has just moved. So they are usually glad to give an order to call on her. And by starting on a friendly basis they generally succeed in getting her trade and holding it.

The Progressive Grocer.

City's Need of Trees
Beautification of Illinois cities through city control of all trees along the streets, for which there are laws on the statute books, is being brought to the attention of various cities by P. L. Phelps of Rochelle, Ill., scientific forester, supported by the Illinois Municipal League.

"Providing shade," Mr. Phelps says, "should be as much a municipal function as providing lights or sidewalks. To obtain satisfactory results it is necessary that the city own and control all street trees."

"Nothing adds more to the beauty of a city than its well-ordered trees. This fact long has been recognized, and for many years householders have been planting trees adjoining their property in an effort to beautify that part of the city in which they live."

Change in City Managers
City managers are not invariably regarded by the cities themselves as precious possessions, a correspondent of the London Times in America writes to that journal. Forty per cent of 219 managers have been allowed to serve for less than two years. Of the city in Oregon has had ten managers in nine years, and Columbus, Ga., had three in one year. Nevertheless, for all its drawbacks, in theory and practice, the city manager plan seems to be making steady headway.

Worth-While Resolutions
Keeping resolutions depends less on them than on those who make them. If resolutions are worth while, effort must be commensurate. Resolutions will not keep themselves, no matter how desirable and beneficial they may be.—Grit.

Seeing its reflection in the enamel of a motorcar left on a country road in Wiltshire, England, a gamecock attacked it with such fury that there was difficulty in driving it off. Repairs cost over $40, and the bill for this queer claim has just been settled by the insurance company.

The Odd Fellows will confer the initiatory degree at the meeting, Tuesday evening, March 10. A large attendance is expected.

Miss Sampson says, "My wife makes me in her pressure cooker, it keeps longer."

Mrs. J. W. Whitehouse lost her pocket book on the street last Friday afternoon. She was on her way up street from her home on Greenleaf Ave. There was a good sum of money in it as she was to pay her school bill. She went back over her room and found only one person who possibly might have picked up the book and is waiting to read this notice before returning it so as to make sure the ownership. We hope this is so and the book will be promptly returned.

Mrs. M. W. Sampson entertained at her home on Bridge street, Tuesday evening, an auction party. Cards with colored ribbons and complementary rhymes were drawn for places. Dainty refreshments were served in the dining room, the room being illuminated by candles. In the party were Mrs. J. E. Curtis, Miss Deane, Miss Ford, Miss Pauline Noble, Mrs. E. C. Murch, Mrs. William Libby, Mrs. G. Leon Curtis, Miss Mildred Curtis, Mrs. Geo. Locke, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. L. H. Chushman, Miss Martha Chushman, Mrs. H. B.
